 This is a Land Use Permit for a Single Family Dwelling. All site development and grading shall adhere to the recommendations of the geological site investigation and report from AGECE Applied GeoTech. Project No. 1160381 dated June 7, 2016. The conclusion and findings found on page 3, The site is suitable from a geological hazard perspective if the proposed residence is constructed in the south portion of the property. Seismic ground shaking is the primary geological hazard to consider in the development of Parcel #17-307-0002. There is a natural hazards notice (to be provided by Weber County) which must be signed and recorded with the Weber County Recorder's Office. Per LUC Section 104-27-5.
