Gentlemen,

Would you mind taking a look at this proposed ag exempt barn. It will have animals in it. I'd normally upload to frontier before asking, but I am behind on this one and told this gentleman I'd try to get his permit today or tomorrow.

Do either of you have issues with this being considered ag exempt?

Thanks,
Steve

Hello Steven:

I have attached the following documents:

- #1. Weber County Agricultural Building Permit Exemption Application
- #2. Property / Barn setback site plan
- #3. Roper – Pole Barn specifications

Thank you for helping me get the barn figured out, and submitted for approval.

Please let me know if you need any additional information, submissions, etc, to get this approved.

Thank you

Richard,

If you meet the parcel area requirements, if the building is used solely for agriculture, and if you have an agricultural operation you can get an 'ag exempt' permit if the building inspector determines that you are exempt. What is the address of the parcel this is being proposed on?

Thanks,

Steve Burton

Hello Scott:

I'm not sure of the correct process to apply for an agricultural barn permit. I don't think I need a building permit, but maybe a (land use permit?)

I checked online, but can't make out for sure which is the correct form, and process.

I have the plans from Roper (contractor attached)

60x80 (3 sided barn) One end is left completely open for easy access

No electricity

No plumbing

Barn will be strictly hay and animals. We bale hay, raise goats, horses and steers.

I could use some direction on what I need to do, and how to get approval with approval number so I can get this barn built.

Thank you
