Yes

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

I do not know. lots of unanswered questions.

Q11 Any additional comments?

What about all the sloughs & lowlands out here? At one meeting, it was stated that they could not raise their land more than 5 ft. If the land by me was raised 5 ft., our property would be under water 1/4 of the year. (normal precipitation, not the drought we have experience the last few years). A new neighbor filled in the drainage pond for our neighborhood. This area was about 4-5 deep and covered 1/4 acre. When it rains or snow melts, he pumps the water that sits on his onto the that runs on the south side of the It sends the water down to our neighbors property and then when that floods, it starts to head into our backyard. Luckily, we have not had the wet years we have seen living here for 30 years. They might come back. Our property will then sit under 1 foot of water and flood our basement. I have tried to talk to several officials about this but, I just get the runaround or, no answers at all. There is a lot of lowland out here with absolutely no drainage and a lot of fools who think you can just fill in the sloughs and lowlands. You people never mention this problem. You just keep saying 1 house per acre would be 16,000 homes but, 1. you cannot build in the sloughs and 2. there will have to be a lot of acreage of roads.

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

Being able to discern what is most important when deciding development and understanding that it shouldn't be just one acres and there must be development of retail/amenities to support the growth.

Q11 Any additional comments?

I wouldn't mind lots less than one acre as long as they are in a cluster. Outside of that they must be one acre. There isn't a question referring to what we would like most to see if we had to have it developed. I want one acre lots unless it's in a cluster then smaller are ok as long as open space is preserved.

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

Farmers and cluster subdivisions CAN NOT & DO NOT mix at all. The farmer is always chased out. Look at Davis county, No more farms they got run out by the Cluster subdivision open your eyes and look around. We Need to save what farmers we have left no more cluster subdivisions besides it it discrimination against the people who live here now, we have to have 1 acre of land 1 share of water and 350 ft frontage. Now tell me is that discrimination or not ??? time to get the lawyers looking into it and see if it is or not !!!! this is the way it has always been and should always be out here 1 acre, one share of water and 350 ft frontage we the people didn't change it your crooks did behind out backs !!!!!!!

Q11 Any additional comments?

Listen to the people who live out here and not to the money hunger crooks. without Kerry Gibson the farmers are going to get screwed and pushed out. Our Great President Trump said NO ONE will take Land away from farmers and NO ONE will chase the farmers out. I am it the process of writing him again and tell him what Weber County is trying to do to the farmers just to put money in their own pockets. We are the only farming community left in Weber county so lets keep it that way!!!! I will let you know what President Trump has to say when he writes me back again !!!!!

Q8 Would you support a "purchase of development rights" program, where development rights are purchased from large land owners and then 'retired' and never developed?

Yes, and I would support a local nonprofit land trust to help purchase and retire those development rights.

Q9 Given all of the information you have learned through this process, including information regarding the new cluster subdivision ordinance, would you favor keeping the entire Western Weber area zoned for one acre lots?

Yes

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

These surveys are very helpful to get the residents' opinions of the development of West Weber county across and make sure the desires of these residents are met.

Q11 Any additional comments?

No

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

We have to cater to rich white privileged developer's cause they know what's best for our county

Q11 Any additional comments?

Your worst case scare map missed the mark on real buildable land , Lots of slews and natural ground water you just can't build on so your map is not real, you had no roads just lots. , we have no water, ground can't handle more septic, sewer plant is at capacity , I know Raise taxes on all of us current residence!

Thanks

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?

The most helpful information I've learned from this process is that up till now, most residents don't know much about the current cluster subdivision regulations. And most people don't get involved till it's in their backyard. And that's when everyone finds out how much they don't like the current cluster subdivision. It's time some changes are made to make it harder for developers to achieve bonus density. OR just remove the bonus density all together.

Q5 In response to question 4, would you require any percentage of the land to be permanently preserved as open space, which in effect would create a type of clustered development? (If 'no' make sure the slider is on zero. Adjust slider if yes). Respondent skipped this question

Q6 If you could choose the regulation for property within 500 foot radius of yours, how many square feet would you prefer lot sizes be? 1 Acre

Q7 In response to question 6, would you require any percentage of the land to be permanently preserved as open space, which in effect would create a type of clustered development? (If 'no' make sure the slider is on zero. Adjust slider if yes). Respondent skipped this question

Q8 Would you support a "purchase of development rights" program, where development rights are purchased from large land owners and then 'retired' and never developed?

Respondent skipped this question

Q9 Given all of the information you have learned through this process, including information regarding the new cluster subdivision ordinance, would you favor keeping the entire Western Weber area zoned for one acre lots?

Yes

Q10 What is the most helpful piece of information you have learned from this process?
