Weber County Design Review
Narrative
Musser Residence
8855 Pineview Court
Huntsville, Utah 84317

The architectural style of the building and site design provide multiple compensating design features that are compatible and harmonious with existing structures within the vicinity of the site. These include the following for both the home and site design.

1. The home is situated below the grade of roadway and end of the cul-de-sac in which access is obtained. This location and design approach provides for a very low profile of the home where the ridge of the roof maintains views of the valley and mountains beyond.
2. The form of the roof is primarily a shed roof type of roof which is represented throughout the valley and is indicative of the local agricultural vernacular. This roof form also allows for the massing of the home to be significantly lower profile and mass than what a gable type roof would present. The roof massing is also broken into several components without long ridge lines.
3. The exterior materials and colors of reclaimed wood and rusticated metal blend with the backdrop of the hillside and also are indicative of the local building materials.
4. The Green Hills HOA reviewed the plans and approved them for conformity to their requirements. The HOA was appreciative to the sensitivity of views and integration into the site.
